MOON, From C1

cluding, but not limited to physicians, psychiatrists, social workers, and lay persons (and) to keep (young Trimble) in . . . custody, even in the event (young Trimble) wishes to leave said

The judge set a hearing for Nov. 1 and ordered the record of the proceeding sealed. He could not be reached for comment.

Runyon said Carl Trimble was one of many persons whose parents had "kidnaped" them from the Unification Church on the grounds that the church had "brainwashed" them. He said the charges were baseless and that the church would fight them in court.

Runyon said church records showed that Trimble had been the object of a similar effort to separate him from the church in California last March. but that the judge had dismissed the action. He said Trimble had been a student in California and that his parents lived in Milwaukee.

In a similar case, Wendy Helander, a Connecticut teen-ager, won a case in D.C. Superior Court in which her parents sought to gain custody of her and to remove her from the influence of the church.

On the rally as a whole, Runyon said it had been a success even though many of those attending had obviously been mere curiosity seekers. He acknowledged that these included many who took advantage of cut-rate bus transportation provided by the Unification Church from New York, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Baltimore and other cities. "In any kind of evangelistic work, you attract many people who don't expect to become converts," he said. We try to make the doors as wide open as possible, so that the people will see what our church is about themselves."

Runyon said the wide media coverage given the event would help get Moon's message out "and we're definitely happy about that,'

He also said that the relative lack of incidents during the demonstration served to show that "there was a good spirit in the crowd."

Park police said there had been a total of 24 purse-snatchings during the day, but that only two formal complaints had been filed.

As for the clean-up operation, Runyon said it was, in effect, "a declaration of our principles: cleanliness is next to Godliness.'

He said the clean-up would extend to resodding or reseeding any areas on the Mall that required this.

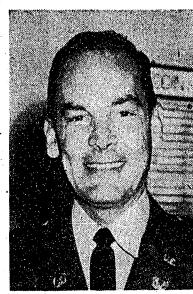

A National Capital Parks spokesman said the Unification Church had spent $18,000 on providing portable toilets for the affair, even though the Park Service is "mandated" by law to provide such facilities for large events for which it gives permits.

He said the total cost of overtime pay for Park Police was $75,000.

Runyon said Moon, had returned to his headquarters at Tarrytown, N.Y. He said "several hundred" full-time workers in the Unification Church would remain in the Washington area to do follow-up missionary work in the wake of the demonstration.

A National Capital Parks spokesman said young Trimble had resisted his father's initial efforts to take him into custody, and that his struggles had been assisted by several other members of the Unification Church.

He said Park Police had "separated everyone," placed the Trimbles in a police cruiser, and taken them to the Park Police substation at 2d and V Streets SW. At that point, the spokesman said, the police placed the young man in his father's custody. He said their responsibility under Judge Nunzio's court order ended there.

RICHARD E. VALDES

Ex-Musician In Army Bands

Richard Edwin Valdes, 45, a retired Army warrant officer, died at Suburban Hospital Saturday. The cause of death has not been determined.

Mr. Valdes, a native of Nashville, grew up in Washington and was a 1949 graduate of McKinley Technical

After graduation, he enlisted in the Army, serving first with the Army Field Band, and later with the 7th Army Symphony in Europe, as a saxophonist and vocalist. Before he retired in 1969, he was stationed in San Francisco and Vietnam. He worked for Montgomery County as a computer analyst after he retired.

Survivors include his wife, Joan Rutland Valdes of the home, 4401 Lescot St. in Rockville; three daughters, Deborah, Alicia and Erica and a son, Christopher, all of the home; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin R. Valdes of McLean; a sister, Carole Owens of Rockville and a brother, Kenneth N. Valdes of Washington.

Elizabeth Eppley, Active in Clubs

Elizabeth Eppley, of College Park, died Thursday after a long illness.

. Born in Tyrone, Pennsylvania, Mrs. Eppley first came to College Park over 50 years ago to attend the University of Maryland, from which she graduated in 1925 with both an undergraduate and a master's degree in sociology. That same year she married Geary Eppley, dean emeritus of the University of Maryland, who retired in 1964.

An active member of St. Andrew's Episcopal Church in College Park, the American Red Cross and the College Park Women's Club, Mrs. Eppley also belonged to the Brigadier General Raisen Beall chapter of the DAR, the Paint Branch and Snow Hill Garden clubs, the Maryland Geneological Society, and the Prince George's and Maryland Historical Societies.

Besides her husband, she is survived by two daughters, Elizabeth Danforth, of Richmond, Va. and Frances Tobin of Oradell, N.J.; one son, Geary, of Houston, Texas; a sister, Miriam Rockwell of Hartford, Conn.; a brother, Lawrence Flenner of Wilmington, Delaware; and 12 grandchil-

Marguerite Aimi, Author, Lecturer

Marguerite Sitgreaves Aimi, an author and lecturer, died Sept. 12 at Arlington Hospital after a stroke. She lived at 3949 N. Dumbarton St., McLean.

Mrs. Aimi, a native of Phillipsburg, N.J., was graduated from schools there during World War I and shortly afterwards came to Washington.

In the 1930s she set up her own advertising agency and then became a radio scriptwriter, writing for more than 100 radio shows. In the 1940s she organized and directed the foreign language school of the United Nations Club in Washington.

Mrs. Aimi was the author of a number of magazine articles for children that were translated into several languages. She lectured frequently and was a past president of the Theosophical Society. She is survived by her husband, Jacques, N. Aimi of the home. .
